Social media behaviours

It is important that members understand that their comments and actions on social media sites may be seen by a wider audience and that their activities may damage the reputation of WLOS as well as affect relationships with members and WLOS audiences. Inappropriate use of electronic communication systems can result in material financial loss and/or legal action being taken against us.

For these reasons all our members are obliged to use electronic communications and social media appropriately and responsibly within their personal lives where they have an active link with WLOS.

Unlike informal conversations, comments made online can be permanent. If you include on your profile a link to WLOS, then any other groups you associate with may also be linked to WLOS and this can cause a reputational risk to the society.

This will also apply if you are wearing any promotional show items past or present as your behaviour can be reflected back to the society.

I have read and agree with the above statement
